

Navigating Life: Commonsense Reflections for the Voyage

Life is an adventure. You can ignore it and let life's winds blow you where they will. You can complain about the trip. Or you can embrace your travels and make the best of them. I can't help you with the first two choices. If you choose the third option I have some provisions for your journey. I will share with you suggestions for how you can better appreciate life. I also have some thoughts about how people choose to conduct their lives. Spirituality to me means Awakening to the goodness and joy for which you were created. Following are reflections on how to live a spiritual life in this sense. We have some extraordinary powers as humans. I offer you some thoughts on how to use them. We are social beings and, like it or not, live in society. I offer some thoughts about how to manage social life. We are creatures with feelings. Enclosed are some ways to make good use of them. We all have talents and I have some ideas about putting them to good use as well. Life can be stressful but you can use it to move ahead rather than let it paralyze you.
